CHILDREN FTE DURING REFE	RENCE PERIOD, BY AGE AS	AT 1 JULY
The reference period varies across Australian States, but is generally a week or fortnightly period around the annual census date in August each year. The New Zealand ECE Census reference week occurs in June each year.
The Full Time Equivalent (FTE) is calculated as: Number of days enrolled/attended by a child during the reference period / Number of days enrolled/attended by a full-time child. For example, for a one week reference period, if a child attends 3 days and a full time child attends 5 days, the FTE for that child is 3 days/5 days = 0.60. For a two week reference period, if a child attends 4 days and a full time child attends 10 days, the FTE for that child is 4 days/10days = 0.40. * Note: The sum of the sample average may not equal 100% due to the filtering of ratios outside of reasonable ranges and also the fact that these figures are calculated as an average of individual school's ratios, not group averages.

Formula: Total Recurrent Income ÷ number of students. Definition: Indicates your relative level of income compared to other schools in the sample.

Your total recurrent income is higher than the average school in the sample with similar student numbers, most likely because your fees are higher than average. Peruse the percentage of Fee, Grant and Other income ratios for more information. This indicates that you are probably better to look at costs, rather than income, if you have an objective of increasing operating surpluses.
